Above: The heavy barrel held the bore deep in its center. Six flutes accented 20 inches of the 26-inch long barrel. Black Hills 50-grain rounds shot the best overall single three-shot group at 200 yards, about 0.63 inches center to center.

Above: Kimber utilized the Mauser-style controlled-feed bolt and extractor. Leupold-style mounts with windage adjustable rear were made by Kimber.

Above: The pistol grip filled the hand and helped us focus on the trigger. The comb was rounded on the left and edged on the right, favoring the right-handed shooter.
