

TAURUS MILLENNIUM PRO PT132SSP 32 ACP, $436

Gun Tests grade: F

There's no room for error in a backup gun. This gun's malfunctions made us distrust it, and with two other guns to recommend, we can't justify buying it.

All levers were on the left side of the pistol. From the rear forward are the thumb safety, slide release, and the slide-stop pin, shown ready for takedown.

The rear sight was adjustable for windage only. We liked the way it played "peek-a-boo" with the white dot on the front sight. The key-operated lock was on the slide, and the extractor had a chamber-loaded indicator.

The double-column magazine piled the rounds in a staggered column. Note how the second round points to one side.
