While certainly not a museum piece, the CZ had great lines and strong, bold looks. Its surface was marred, but its heart was good.

Right: Push out the crosspin and the gun easily comes apart for cleaning. Inside, the gun looked pretty good. Its age damage was mostly limited to its exterior.

Left and bottom left: The CZ's slide and muzzle were badly distressed, as though the gun had been thrown in a barrel with others, and tossed around for years. The polymer finish had been chipped and worn away everywhere.
