

SPRINGFIELD ARMORY XDM XDM9212HCFP
40 S&W, $749

Gun Tests grade: B+

Polymer pistols used to be ugly. The XDM is good looking and carries an impressive payload. Its accuracy was consistent if not spectacular.

With the introduction of the XDM, Springfield Armory entered the adjustable grip race. Panel number 1 (shown) replicates the original XD grip. Panels numbered 2 and 3 added greater palm swell. In our accuracy testing, we wound up using Backstrap 1 to bring down high shots.

The company website offers several pages touting new features but missed the new slide release (arrow). We liked its accessibility much better than the original. The trim contour of the slide negated the need for a pass-through slot to accommodate the slide latch, shown in the release position.
